Kareem Hunt was released from the Kansas City Chiefs this past weekend after a video surfaced of him shoving and kicking a woman in a hallway in February. Incredibly, the NFL knew that there was a domestic incident involving Hunt but did not interview him once in the past 10 months regarding the situation. This, coming from a league that interviewed a Patriots ball boy four separate times because the air pressure in a friggin' football maybe, possibly wasn't up to snuff. The hypocrisy and tactlessness of the higher-ups in the NFL is incredible. For more on the NFL and the Patriots, please see page 9.

COMEY DROPS CHALLENGE TO HOUSE PANEL SUBPOENA

Former FBI Director James Comey on Sunday withdrew his bid to quash a congressional subpoena compelling him to testify in secret about the bureau's decisions on investigations ahead of the 2016 presidential election, his lawyer said. Comey agreed to sit down for a closed-door deposition on Friday. Republicans on the U.S. House of Representatives Judiciary Committee pledged to provide Comey with a full transcript within 24 hours of his testimony, and he will be permitted to "make any or all of that transcript public," Comey's lawyer David Kelley told Reuters in a statement. In addition, a representative from the FBI will attend to help advise Comey on what matters related to the bureau he may divulge. Comey and the Republican lawmakers reached the new agreement the day before lawyers were to appear at a court hearing. Earlier on Sunday, committee chairman Bob Goodlatte said he expected Comey to drop the legal challenge. A judge had been set to issue a ruling on Comey's request to quash the subpoena and halt congressional proceedings — a request that has never previously been granted by a judge in the United States.

NEWTON JUDGE POSSIBLY HELPED MAN EVADE ICE

Newton District Judge Shelley M. Joseph and other court personnel are under federal investigation following an April 2 District Court hearing for a suspect who may have been assisted in evading an ICE agent in the courtroom. According to the Boston Globe, Jose Medina-Perez, who appeared in court after being arrested by Newton police on drug charges, was reportedly released out of a back door of the court and was able to evade the ICE agent there to detain him. Aside from the drug charges, Perez faced a fugitive warrant for driving under the influence in Pennsylvania and a detainer issued by U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement. Now, an investigation prompted by a U.S. attorney in Boston is looking into whether or not the Newton judge and others helped Perez flee the court. On the day of Perez's court hearing, his attorney is said to have approached the bench to privately inform Joseph and the state prosecutor about his client's situation. Part of the sidebar conversation was recorded until the judge asked the court clerk to shut off the recorder. Joseph, as well as the Trial Court, declined to comment on the case. SARAH LUOMA

NEXSTAR CLINCHES $4.1B
DEAL TO ACQUIRE TRIBUNE

4 Nexstar Media Group Inc. has reached an agreement to acquire Tribune Media Co. for about $4.1 billion, a deal which would make it the largest local U.S. TV station operator, people familiar with the matter said on Sunday. Nexstar's acquisition would come just three months after Tribune's $3.9 billion deal to sell itself to Sinclair Broadcast Group Inc., currently the largest U.S. local TV station operator, collapsed over regulatory hurdles. Nexstar outbid private equity firm Apollo Global Management LLC with an all-cash offer that values

Tribune at around $46.50 per share, three sources said. Tribune shares ended trading on Friday at $40.26. Nexstar, which has a market capitalization of $3.8 billion, has lined up banks to provide debt financing for the deal, the sources added. The agreement between Nexstar and Tribune Media could be announced by Monday, according to the sources. The sources asked not to be identified because the matter is confidential. Tribune and Apollo declined to comment, while Nexstar and Sinclair did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

REPORT: NFL NEVER SPOKE TO HUNT, ALLEGED VICTIM

5 The NFL did not interview running back Kareem Hunt nor the woman he allegedly assaulted when it investigated an offseason incident at a hotel in Cleveland, according to an ESPN report. The Kansas City Chiefs released Hunt shortly after the league announced he had been placed on the Commissioner's Exempt list following the release of surveillance video of the incident. Multiple outlets reported that the Chiefs sent Hunt home from the facility on Friday after learning the video had been released. Additional reports indicate the NFL and Chiefs have been aware of the existence of the video, but it is not known whether the league or team viewed the footage. However, the league released a statement Friday evening in which it called the video "new information." According to the ESPN report, the league never sought an interview with Hunt after multiple witnesses said he was not involved in the February incident. The league reportedly did reach out to the woman on multiple occasions, but was rebuffed. The incident occurred at The Metropolitan at 3:22 a.m. on Feb. 10, and involved then-19-year-old Abigail Ottinger from Berea, Ohio.

World remembers former President George H.W. Bush

Bush died late Friday at the age of 94.

Tributes to former President George H.W. Bush, who died Friday at the age of 94, poured in from around the world on Saturday as global leaders honored him for his role in helping to end the Cold War and reduce the threat of nuclear annihilation.

Bush, the 41st U.S. president, who served in the office from 1989 to 1993, also routed President Saddam Hussein's Iraqi army in the 1991 Gulf War but lost his chance for a second term in the White House after breaking a no-new-taxes pledge.

"Many of my memories are linked to him," said Mikhail Gorbachev, the last leader of the Soviet Union, with whom Bush signed a strategic arms reduction treaty that scaled back the two countries' nuclear arsenals.

"We happened to work together in years of great changes. It was a dramatic time, demanding huge responsibility from everyone," Russia's Interfax news agency quoted Gorbachev as saying.

Bush, who also served for eight years as vice president during Ronald Reagan's two-term presidency and earlier as head of the CIA, died on Friday night at his home in Houston. His death was announced by his longtime spokesman Jim McGrath.

Speaking in Buenos Aires, President Donald Trump called Bush "a high-quality man."

"He was a very fine man. I met him on numerous occasions. He was just a high-quality man who truly loved his family," Trump told reporters at a G20 summit in Buenos Aires. "He was a terrific guy and he'll be missed. He led a full life, and a very exemplary life, too."

The White House said a state funeral will be held on Wednesday at the National Cathedral in Washington. Trump, who plans to attend the funeral with first lady Melania Trump, also designated Wednesday as a national day of mourning, and ordered the lowering of the American flag for 30 days.

Former presidents lauded Bush. "His administration was marked by grace, civility and social conscience," former President Jimmy Carter said. REUTERS

Google CEO hearing in US House likely to be postponed

The U.S. House Judiciary Committee will likely put off until next week a hearing with Google Chief Executive Sundar Pichai on the Alphabet Inc. unit's social media practices because of the state funeral of former President George H.W. Bush, Chairman Bob Goodlatte said on Sunday.

Pichai had agreed to testify before the panel over Republican concerns that the company is biased against conservatives after it skipped a high-profile Senate hearing. Google has denied it is biased toward conservatives.

The hearing has been scheduled for Wednesday, the same day a state funeral will be held for Bush at the National Cathedral in Washington.

Goodlatte said in an interview with Fox News' "Sunday Morning Futures" that he expected the hearing to be rescheduled for next week.

"But we expect that to occur and it's very, very important that it does occur," he said.

In addition to queries about possible political bias, lawmakers may also examine Google's potential investments in China.

Google previously told U.S. lawmakers it was considering options to offer additional services in China, but declined to detail plans for addressing Chinese censorship.

The company has come under criticism after reports it was considering re-entering China's search engine market and would comply with the country's internet censorship and surveillance policies. REUTERS

Michael Zegen seeks redemption in 'The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel' season 2

The actor talks about playing Joel, the closest thing to an antagonist the hit show has.

letters@metro.us

The events of "The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel," season one, are set into motion when Joel Maisel (Michael Zegen), a businessman and would-be stand-up comedian, leaves his wife Miriam (Midge) (Rachel Brosnahan) and their two children for his secretary. As a result, his personal and professional life spirals out of control, while Midge's blossoms. She moves in with her parents, gets a day job and becomes one of New York's most-talked-about comics.

It's easy to see Midge's success as the ultimate revenge against Joel, whose character is the closest "The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel" ever really gets to having an antagonist. As Zegen tells Metro, however, Joel was never meant to be a simple foil for Midge's triumphs. On the contrary, he's a flawed human being who makes mistakes, learns from most of them and tries to make things right — albeit from his limited perspective.

"You'll be seeing a different side of Joel this season. You'll see a more human side of him," he says. "In the first season, he's really the antagonist. I mean, there's not really an antagonist, but he kind of takes that position in most people's minds.

But I think he's less of an antagonist in the second season, and more of somebody who's kind of rooting for Midge to succeed. That ends up being a kind of redemption for him."

And there's the rub, for despite what Joel did to Miriam and their two children, he's one of the first people to recognize how great she is on stage. He quickly realizes what she's capable of, and even though it remains a thorn between them, he knows she should keep doing it. After all, by the end of the first season, he's one of the only people who knows what she gets up to at night.

"Joel is one of the few people who knows what she's been up to," he says. "And what she's been doing is beginning to have a ripple effect now, especially on him. Obviously, more people are going to eventually discover what she's been up to later this season or next, but for now, he's the one."

He's also the one who, despite what audiences may have felt was their better judgment, many have come to sympathize with. Midge remains front and center throughout season two, but that doesn't mean that showrunner Amy Sherman-Palladino and Dan Palladino weren't going to give everyone else their due. This even includes Joel.

"It was always our intention that Joel was going to be the love of her life then, now and probably always," says Sherman-Palladino. "Unfortunately, for some things, the timing is off. Maybe you run into that person at the wrong time or your lives take you in different directions. But you understand what the relationship is and you don't blame Midge for falling in love with him in the first place."

"The initial reaction makes sense," adds Zegen. "I think it hits a nerve with a lot of people, perhaps because they've been wronged, cheated on or something like that. Hopefully, however, I'm playing it as real as possible, because getting that sort of a reaction from those who watch the show is not necessarily a bad thing. If somebody is feeling something because of my performance, then that's what you want as an actor."

"The Marvelous Mrs. Maisel" season two premieres Wednesday on Amazon Prime.

JOBS

Paying off debt is a worthy target, but financial tunnel vision could cost you in the long run.

NerdWallet is a personal finance website.

Tackling money goals one at a time cost financial literacy expert Barbara O'Neill at least $1 million.

That's how much O'Neill, a distinguished professor at Rutgers University, figures she lost by starting saving for retirement only after she had created an emergency fund, bought a car with cash and purchased a home.

"I tell students that eventually, 30 years later, I hit the million-dollar mark, but I could've had $2 million," O'Neill says.

Too often, financial experts say, people want to attack their money goals one at a time: "As soon as I pay off my credit card debt, then I'll start saving for a home," or, "As soon as I pay off my student loan debt, then I'll start saving for retirement."

These folks don't realize how costly the words "as soon as" can be. Paying off debt is a worthy goal, but it shouldn't come at the expense of other goals, particularly saving for retirement. Company matches and tax breaks are not retroactive. And the sooner money is contributed, the longer it can benefit from compounded returns. Compounded returns are when your investment gains earn their own gains, which can dramatically increase your balances over time.

"By putting off saving for the future, you are really inhibiting yourself from benefiting from that wonderful magic," says Kimberly Zimmerman Rand, an accredited financial counselor and principal at Dragonfly Financial Solutions in Boston.

Why people tackle one goal at a time

The desire to laser-focus on one goal at a time is understandable, says financial coach Linda Matthew. People see faster results if they put every spare dollar toward paying down debt, for example.

But much of life requires multitasking, and money is no different, she says.

"I've got to take care of the kids, and stay in a relationship with my husband, and keep the house clean, and earn some money," says Matthew, an accredited financial counselor and owner of Money Mindful, a financial coaching service based in Davis, California.

Busy lives make it tempting to try to focus on one goal at a time, Rand says. People may pay the most attention to their most immediate need or something that is causing them pain, ignoring the rest of their financial life.

How to multitask

Financial experts recommend starting and maintaining a regular savings habit, even if it's only $5 a week.

"I work with very low-income consumers, and I think most people can do this," Rand says. "And then once your hours start to get more regular, maybe you've got a better job, now you can boost that amount."

Rand also is a fan of making transfers automatic whenever possible.

"Setting it and forgetting it is actually a good thing when it comes to savings because then you don't have to make that active decision every month," she says.

O'Neill suggests dividing savings among different "buckets": one for retirement, one for emergency funds, perhaps one for a home down payment. At the same time, target high-interest debt, such as credit card bills.

Once the system is in place, stick with it, O'Neill says. If a goal is achieved, redirect that money to one of the other goals.

Patriots rip through Vikings

The Patriots flexed their muscle Sunday in a dominant win over Minnesota.

matthew.burke@metro.us

The Patriots got things done the old-fashioned way on Sunday as they used the running game and a stout defensive effort to dump the Vikings, 24-10, at Gillette Stadium. With the win, the Pats moved to 9-3 on the season and maintained the second seed in the AFC playoff race.

New England ran the ball with seven different players in the first half, including Tom Brady, who finally eclipsed 1,000 rushing yards for his career. The Pats had 56 yards rushing in the first half on 16 carries — led by Sony Michel, who had 19 yards on seven carries. Michel finished the day with a team-high 63 yards rushing and the team ran up a total of 160 yards on 39 carries.

After sputtering offensively for the majority of the second and third quarters, Brady found good rhythm with 2:20 left in the third. He hit Josh Gordon for 24 yards, Rob Gronkowski for 15 yards, and Gordon again for a 24-yard touchdown strike that broke a 10-10 tie. James White, who was dynamite on the afternoon in the running and passing game, also added a 12-yard rush on the key drive.

Dont'a Hightower and the Patriots defense had a strong showing Sunday at Gillette.

That momentum carried over to the fourth quarter as a strong 23-yard punt return by Julian Edelman and a pass interference call on Minnesota's Holton Hill put the Patriots at the Minnesota 30-yard line. Josh McDaniels dialed up Michel for a pair of runs and a seven-yard completion before James Develin found the end zone for the second time on the day.

Brady finished the afternoon with 311 yards passing, completing 24 of 32 passes. He had a touchdown and a pick to earn a solid 102.5 passer rating.

It was Brady's first 300-plus-yard game since the team's win at Buffalo in late October.

December defense

In the Bill Belichick-Brady era, the Patriots most often play their best regular-season football in the month of December. That's particularly true for the defense, which turned in its best performance of the season on Sunday.

The Pats held Vikings star receiver Adam Thielen to just one catch in the first half and just five catches overall, for 28 yards total.

New England also put considerable pressure on Minnesota quarterback Kirk Cousins all day, highlighted by Trey Flowers' third-down sack of Cousins to start the fourth quarter.

The defensive unit also made up for a rare Brady error, as after Brady threw a wobbly interception to the Vikings' Eric Kendricks, Duron Harmon and JC Jackson combined to pick off Cousins in the end zone.

Jonathan Jones also had an interception to close the game for the Pats.

James White was masterful out of the backfield on Sunday. GETTY IMAGES

Aries If you are intent on making a change, focus on self-improvement instead of trying to alter someone else. Don't neglect your responsibilities or you will face criticism.

Taurus Share your thoughts and make plans or arrangements to visit or talk to an older relative who would appreciate the gesture. A kind action will get you in the festive spirit.

Gemini Don't leave anything to chance. If you trust in someone, you'd better be sure that he or she doesn't have ulterior motives. Moderation will be in your best interest.

Cancer You'll find the perfect way to update your image or a special outfit for a festive event. Romance is on the rise and can lead to a closer bond with a loved one.

Leo Keep life simple. You may feel like getting into the spirit of the season, but putting your health first will help you avoid a bug that's spreading through your community.

Virgo You'll do best if you are out and about. Shopping, attending business functions or making changes to your legal or financial papers will help you avoid domestic problems.

Libra Taking a short trip or making plans to travel during the holiday season will lift your spirits. The information you are offered will open your eyes to a situation you are facing at home.

Scorpio The personal changes you put into play will be well-received. Whether it's adopting a new look, decorating your home or doing something for an old friend or relative, it will be gratifying.

Sagittarius Take care of responsibilities and get ahead. The time you put in now will pay off when you want to spend time with friends and family as the year comes to a close.

Capricorn Take a wait-and-see approach when dealing with anyone who tends to be unpredictable. A practical attitude will help you deal with any uncertainty that comes your way.

Aquarius Look at and make changes to personal documents that may be time-sensitive. Taking care of business before you move on to more pleasurable activities will ease stress.

Pisces A little nurturing will go a long way. Make a promise to someone special, and don't renege. Aim to end the year on a high note and in better financial shape. EUGENIA LAST
